Jim Carroll author of "The Basketball Diaries" dies at 60.

September 14, 10:19 PM  Boise Movie Examiner  Christine Munson

Go mobile  Favorite Examiners  Meet the Examiners

Jim Carroll author of "The Basketball Diaries" which was made into a movie starring Leonardo DiCaprio www.imdb.com/title/tt0112461/ died Friday of a heart attack. "The Basketball Diaries" chronicles his wild teen-age years as a kid attending an elite private school on a basketball scholarship who is also a drug addict. The book was originally published in 1978 and became popular on college campuses. Carroll also had earlier recognition as a poet which led him to his punk rock career. His best known work in the punk rock genre is the song "People Who Died" from the album "Catholic Boy." www.youtube.com/watch He went on to work with Patti Smith, Lou Reed, and Pearl Jam. Jim Carroll was recognized as the poet of his generation by no less than Allen Ginsberg and Jack Kerouac.